- CHART KEY
- A life, from birth to death, colored as the map colors a tribe. Both years follow from the ages Scripture gives.
 - Length of life given, year of birth not given: placed approximately (c.).
 - A step: the birth of the next in the line, with the father's age.
 - Judah's line: names only, not placed in time.
 - The promise to Abram, Jacob's move to Egypt, the Exodus.
 - The Flood, in the 600th year of Noah.
 - In the border: the number of the generation, counted from Adam.
 - 1–10 Adam to Noah
 - 11–20 Shem to Abraham
 - 21–26 Isaac to Moses

WHERE MOSES LEAVES THE LINE · JUDAH'S LINE

The line divides among the sons of Jacob and Leah. From Levi, her third son, come Kohath, Amram, and Aaron and Moses (Exodus 6:16–20). From Judah, her fourth (Genesis 29:34–35), comes the line to David: Perez (by Tamar, Genesis 38), Hezron, Ram, Amminadab, Nahshon, Salmon, Boaz (by Rahab), Obed (by Ruth), Jesse, David (Ruth 4:18–22; 1 Chronicles 2:3–15; Matthew 1:2–6).

No ages are recorded for Judah's line, so its names hang from Jacob without bars and are not set on the scale of years. The two branches meet once: Aaron married Elisheba, daughter of Amminadab and sister of Nahshon (Exodus 6:23). Nahshon led the tribe of Judah in the wilderness (Numbers 1:7).

ABOUT THIS CHART

Developed from a hand-drawn timeline of the first ten generations. Names and ages follow the New King James Version. The years are arithmetic from those ages under the choices explained at right: a reckoning, not a statement of Scripture.

HOW THE YEARS ARE RECKONED

The scale. Years are counted from the creation of Adam. Each birth year is the father's birth year plus his age when the son was born (Genesis 5; 11:10–26, the Hebrew text followed by the NKJV). Luke 3:36 has a second Cainan after Arphaxad; Genesis 11 does not, and he is not counted.

Shem. Genesis 5:32 names Noah's three sons when he was 500, but Shem was 100 two years after the Flood (11:10): he was born when Noah was 502.

Abram. Genesis 11:26 names Terah's three sons when he was 70 in the same way. Terah died at 205 (11:32), and Abram then left Haran aged 75 (12:4; Acts 7:4); so Abram was born when Terah was 130, in 2008. Reckoned from Terah at 70, every date from Abram on falls 60 years earlier.

The 430 years run from the promise to Abram (2083) to the Exodus (2513): Exodus 12:40–41; Galatians 3:16–17. That is 215 years to Jacob's arrival in Egypt (25 to Isaac's birth, 60 to Jacob's, 130 more: Genesis 21:5; 25:26; 47:9) and 215 years in Egypt. So Exodus 6:16–20 stands as four unbroken generations, as in Genesis 15:16, and Jochebed is Levi's own daughter, born in Egypt (Numbers 26:59). The longer count puts all 430 years in Egypt (the Exodus in 2728); but Kohath entered Egypt with Jacob (Genesis 46:11), and 133 + 137 + 80 years reach only 350, so names would be missing between Levi and Moses.

Levi, Kohath, Amram. Their lengths of life are given (Exodus 6:16, 18, 20), their birth years are not. Joseph was 39 when Jacob was 130 (Genesis 41:46; 45:6; 47:9), so he was born when Jacob was 91, at the end of fourteen years in Haran (30:25; 31:41); Levi, Leah's third son, about four years earlier. Kohath and Amram are set midway in the span the text allows.

A check. Archbishop Ussher's Annals of the World (1650–1654) reckons both points the same way and gives the same years: the Flood 1656, Abram 2008, the Exodus 2513.
