ABOUT THIS MAP

Relief from the Copernicus GLO-90 digital elevation model (European Space Agency, 2021), shaded from the north-west; the Salt Sea is drawn at its ancient extent. Each tribe’s color is strongest at its border and fades toward its middle. Site positions from the OpenBible.info Bible Geocoding data (CC BY 4.0); uncertain identifications follow its best estimate. Tribal borders run through the boundary towns and features each chapter names, at the sites the OpenBible data gives, with straight legs between them; where a named landmark has no known site the leg is dashed. They remain a reconstruction. The letters and numbers in the border give each place’s square in the index. Names follow the New King James Version: the Yarmuk carries its later name, since Scripture does not name
